

SPEAKER BIOGRAPHY

Tim Watts

Tim manages Better Place's relationships with electricity distributors and metering services providers, and works closely with governments on policy and regulatory reforms to support the take-up of electric cars.

Prior to joining Better Place, he was a strategy consultant with the Nous Group, where he advised major corporations and governments in sectors including energy, water, transport, and aged care. In 2003, Tim co-founded Flexicar, a car-share service with operations in 20 suburbs in Melbourne and Sydney, which was recently acquired by the Hertz Corporation. He holds a masters degree in politics and economics from Northeastern University in Boston.

